

The image shows the front entrance of a brick house. The main door is a dark wood double door with glass panes, set within a light-colored arched frame. Above the door is a decorative transom window with a diamond lattice pattern. The house is built with red brick and features stone accents around the door and windows. To the right of the door is a window with a similar diamond lattice pattern. A house number '1601' is mounted on the brick wall to the right of the door. A set of brick steps leads up to the door, flanked by stone planters containing various flowers, including white and pink blossoms. The overall scene is well-maintained and inviting.
